

MRS. SULZER TO TESTIFY AT HEARING

Ready to Lift Curtain on Drama.

BOTH SIDES CONFIDENT

May Require Forty Votes to Convict Sulzer.

SPECULATION ON OUTCOME.

Defense Continues a Mystery, and Attorneys Refuse to Make Known Plans—Judges and Senators Establish a Line of Procedure—Principals Assemble at State Capital.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 18.—Legislators, lawyers, judges, politicians and spectators flocked to Albany to participate in and witness the most spectacular political event in New York history—the impeachment and trial of a governor of the Empire State. Governor William Sulzer must face his accusers and answer to charges of "high crimes and misdemeanors."

Mrs. Sulzer will be one of the most important witnesses for the defense, according to the governor's friends. She will tell her own story of the stock deals in her own way before the bar of the impeachment court. This will lead an intensely human touch to a proceeding about which there is still very much mystery. She will probably be able to clear up with her own lips the inside truth of the allegation, made by the friends of Sulzer, that the speculative deal was a trap.

Judge Cullen a Great Figure. Edgar M. Cullen, chief judge of the court of appeals, stands out as a great figure in the case. He is admittedly a fearless jurist. Nothing has ever awed him in his sworn duty but his belief in the right. He retires from office on Dec. 31 next, simply because he has reached the age limit.

The stage for the trial is set in the gorgeous senate chamber of the monumental capitol, a lofty room converted into a legislative hall into a courtroom and arranged for stately and solemn effects. Crimson tapestries embellished with the emblems of the state hang on the walls. The furniture is of mahogany, the ceilings gorgeous with art decorations. All the setting is designed to display the majesty and the power of the greatest state in the Union impeaching its chief executive. Albany is busy with rehearsals of the actors who will enact the leading roles. The board of managers, who have been accumulating evidence in New York city, came up to this city bearing the mass of documents and accompanied by their counsel. The governor and his lawyers met in conference, planning the defense and watchful of every move of the accusers' forces.

The governor himself was amazingly confident, but holding strictly to the silence imposed upon him by his counsel. No one can predict with certainty the result. Each side asserts its confidence. Neither side knows.

The machinery of the government has broken down during the months of contest between governor and legislature. Expenditures have run wild. Administration efficiency is lost. There is chaos instead of system. Co-operation between departments has disappeared in dissension and factional quarrels. The state is almost without a business government.

All the arrangements and the course of procedure have been copied from the trial of Andrew Johnson, president of the United States nearly half a century ago, when congress sought to remove him from office and failed by a single vote. There is the same uncertainty prevailing in Albany. All attempts to forecast how the members of the court will vote have proved futile.

From 55 to 59 Men to Sit. Two-thirds of all the members present must vote the governor guilty before he can be removed from office. The combined membership of the court of appeals and senate, if all places were filled, would be sixty-one. The senate

FACTS ABOUT SULZER IMPEACHMENT TRIAL.

Will last anywhere from four weeks to two months, it is estimated.

All business of the court of appeals, including the cases of Charles Becker and the New York gun men, will be delayed for weeks.

Reorganization of the labor department and all prison reforms will be postponed indefinitely.

Appointments of two public service commissioners, three supreme court justices and many other officials will be held up.

The cost of the trial is estimated at about $200,000, divided as follows: Counsel for Mr. Sulzer and the state, $100,000; salaries for justices and senators, $25,000; stenographic work for both sides, $50,000; clerk hire and printing, $25,000.

The loss to the state in the delay of work and through the disorganization of the administrative forces will be large.

has fifty-one members, but there are two vacancies, one caused by the resignation of Franklin D. Roosevelt to become assistant secretary of the navy, the other by the conviction and imprisonment of Stephen J. Stillwell for bribery.

This leaves the senate with forty-nine members. It has not been determined just how many judges of the court of appeals will sit. There are seven elected members and three justices of the supreme court serving in the higher court by special designation. The court will hold a conference and determine whether all ten or only the seven elected judges will participate in the impeachment trial.

Under these circumstances the court of impeachment will consist of between fifty-five and fifty-nine members. To convict will require thirty-eight or forty votes, according to the total number that will assemble in the senate chamber.

Three "Unknown Quantities."

There are three unknown quantities to be determined as the case proceeds: First—Questions of law. It is conceded that the rulings of the eminent judges of the court of appeals will have predominating weight with the senators in passing upon this phase of the trial. Public sentiment is such that few senators would presume to set up their opinions against the decisions of the judges, who are considered to be absolutely unbiased by the political considerations so strongly in the case.

Second—The evidence. While much of this has been made public already, Tammany leaders assert that they have in reserve more damaging testimony tending to show that the governor has committed many financial crimes.

Third—Political exigencies. It has been assumed that the most of the Republican senators will be inclined to vote for the governor whenever legitimate opportunity offers, so that he may continue in office to complete the disruption of Tammany. Democratic senators from up state districts, too, have been hearing from home, where there is strong sympathy for the governor.

One of the most important questions of law to be determined is whether acts committed by the governor before he was sworn into office on Jan. 1 can be considered in connection with his impeachment.

No Fancy Shaves For Him.

The weather was warm, and Pat decided to shave on the back porch. Mrs. Casey, across the way, observed this.

"Pat," she called, "shave an' Oi see ye air shavin' outside."

"Begorra," he responded, "and did ye think Oi was fur lined?"—Judge.

SUFFRAGETTES FIRE HISTORIC MANSION

Militants Attempt to Destroy Penhurst Place.

London, Sept. 18.—A desperate attempt by a suffragette "arson squad" to burn down Penhurst place, the historic fourteenth century country seat of Lord De L'Isle and Dudley at Tunbridge, Kent, was made.

The inmates of the great mansion, awakened by the crackling of wood and by clouds of smoke, found the framework of a number of windows ablaze. Household employees extinguished the flames.

Two women were seen fleeing across the lawn in front of the building, and a large amount of suffrage literature was found in the grounds. Heaps of rags soaked in petroleum were discovered in several places.

Great indignation prevails among neighboring residents, as it is thought probable that the mansion, hitherto open to visitors, may be closed. It contains invaluable portraits of ancestors of the holder of the title, whose family name is Sidney.

UNCLE AND NIECE ARE MISSING

Osceola Mills Girl Said To Figure in Elopement

MAN IN CASE IS MARRIED

Alleged That Verna Walker, Aged 17 Years, Ran Away With Her Uncle Aged 35, from Latter's Home in Avis—Clinton County Authorities After Them.

A telegraphic dispatch from Jersey Shore contains a story of local interest, a girl from Osceola Mills figuring in the reported elopement of a married man and his niece. The dispatch says:

Leon Walker, of Avis, 35 years old, is a much wanted man since last week when he is said to have eloped with his niece, Verna Walker, of Osceola Mills, a girl of 17.

They disappeared at the same time, it is alleged, and from the disclosure since is the belief that they went together. Since vanishing nothing has been heard of them and no track of either has so far been obtained.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker had been living a happy and exemplary married life so far as could be judged from appearances until the girl became a member of the family circle.

Visited Walker Home.

She came, the story goes, at the earnest solicitation of her uncle, and after some hesitation on the part of her parents, who finally gave their consent to permit their daughter to remain with her aunt, for a limited time only, as her aunt was not in good health, and as her husband was employed in the Avis shops, he was away from home all day. Consequently Mrs. Walker was lonely and nervous.

After the arrival of Miss Walker in the home everything appeared to be going along nicely until Mrs. Walker noticed that her husband and his niece appeared to be greatly interested in each other and were together much of the time when the former was not at work.

Alienated His Affections.

The observing wife, becoming convinced finally that the niece was taking her place in the affections of the husband, remonstrated with the latter and asked that he forthwith send the girl to her home. This he declined to do and challenged his wife to issue the order of dismissal, at the same time informing her that if she sent the girl away he would also leave. This threat caused the wife to submit to the existing conditions, but at the end of a few days her husband and the girl quietly slipped away, leaving for parts unknown. This is the situation today. District Attorney H. T. Hall, of Clinton county is trying to locate them and expects to do so in time.

Corn Roast.

On Monday evening about thirty-five girls and boys enjoyed a corn roast and bacon supper at the forks of the Penfield and Rockton road. Miss Grace E. Moore and Charlotte O. Smith were the chaperones for the crowd.

Melvin Neff, who was operated on some time ago at the Jefferson Hospital, in Philadelphia, was brought home this week and is slowly improving.

BICKFORD-READ

Wedding of Two of Clearfield's Young People Wednesday.

At high noon Wednesday, September 17, at the beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Read, occurred the marriage of their daughter Leda H., an only child, to Wade P. Bickford.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. G. Carl of the Baptist church, in the presence of the immediate relatives of the contracting parties, to the number of twenty-two.

After an elaborate wedding dinner the happy couple started on an extended tour over the New York Central lines to points in the Catskills and other places of interest in New York. Upon their return they will reside in Clearfield.

The best wishes of a host friends of the young couple are extended to them.

The Old Painter.

An anecdote which Charles Francis Adams told years ago to the young Henry Cabot Lodge was retold by him in Scribner's. It was one of Gilbert Stuart and of Mr. Adams' grandfather.

Stuart painted a portrait of John Adams in extreme old age, when he was nearing his ninetieth year. It is a very fine portrait of the old man leaning on his cane. Charles Francis Adams, a boy of eighteen, used to keep his grandfather company during the sittings and watch the painter at work.

He said that Stuart, who was old, too, and near the end of his career, was physically feeble. Both his hands shook violently. From a quivering palette he would take his color, and with his brush shaking and trembling he would touch the picture. Mr. Adams said it looked as if he might dash the paint on anywhere, but the brush always touched the portrait, extraordinary as it seemed. In exactly the right spot and in the right way. Despite his shaking hands and trembling fingers the old artist never made a mistake.

Bear Hunting in India.

Among the sports of India is the capturing of bears, and to this curious means are sometimes devised. For example, four or five sturdy men are armed, two with long spears cross barred on the handles close to the sharp two edged blade, and two or three with ten foot bamboos, of which the ends are smeared with bird lime. These hunters sally forth with dogs before dawn. They pass along the base of the hills with the fresh morning wind blowing up the plains below. Should the hunters be lucky it is not long before the dogs find the bear. The dogs are slipped and disappear in the semidarkness. Soon their roaring and growling indicate that they have found the game. The hunters run up to the spot where the bear is fighting with the dogs. The men with the limed poles poke the bear in the ribs and adroitly twist the ends in its long hair, thus holding it fast on each flank. The apemen complete the operation by repeated spear thrusts.

BUILDING BOOM HAS STARTED

New Homes Being Erected But More Are Needed

IMPROVEMENTS DURING YEAR

Business Places Undergo Changes—Greatest Need is Dwelling Houses in the East End for Use of Workmen—Clearfield Best Town in the State.

The Chamber of Commerce has issued the following proclamation:

Clearfield is enjoying a real building boom. Listen to this! Including the new houses now being built on the West Side of the river and those completed there within the past few months, nearly a score of new homes have been added to Clearfield in that one district, and several others are now being considered there.

East End, the part of town most in need of new houses, has not provided many. With an immense sewer pipe works covering acres, nearly completed, with thousands of dollars expended for improvements and extensions by the N. Y. C. & H. R. R. including the new coal car rebuilding and repair shops 30 x 536 feet and all other industries around the hill fairly jumping with prosperity, one would naturally expect to see a hundred new homes and other private buildings going up there.

Should Start Something.

One would naturally feel that East End's absolute guarantee of an increase of more than 1000 in population within a year would "start something" over there.

Wake up, East End! Take your saw and hammer and trowel and get busy! Fortune has been thrust upon you and you don't realize it. Grasp the opportunity! Get busy! build some houses where they are needed.

But we are wandering. We started out to tell you about the building boom.

New Houses Built.

To the score and more houses that have been built and are building there add the large silk velvet mill the sewer pipe works, the car rebuilding and repair shop, Kurtz Brothers' large new printing plant and tablet factory, the new building and improvements made by the Clearfield Machine Shop, Orcutt & Buchanan's large fire proof garage, D. W. Speck's handsome three story store and office building, Lelzinger Brothers five story department store building (which when completed will be the last word in modern store construction), the beautiful double front stone room of the J. G. McCrory Company, the H. & C. Telephone Company's new fire proof exchange building, Louis Shapiro about to build one of the finest store front in the state, and Stern Brothers just completing a fine new store room.

Then, there is the railroad terminal of the Whitmer-Steele company.

And we must not forget that Fred Schmidt, A. Mirkin and Robinson & Company have recently finished and opened new store rooms. The Sugar Bowl was also refinished and opened within the past twelve months.

More to the Story.

Nor are we yet through with our story of Clearfield's building boom. The first floor of the Murray building was completely renovated and rearranged by the Penn Public Service company, which has one of the most up-to-date show rooms and business offices of its kind in the state. Further the rolling mill has a large force of men engaged in adding new equipment, making repairs, rebuilding, unloading steel, etc., preparing for a large business operation.

The second street bridge is in fine condition, having been paved with creosoted wooden blocks and now the Market street bridge is also being put in good repair and paved with creosoted blocks.

All these and many improvements not mentioned, show that Clearfield is building for the future as well as for today. Hundreds of thousands of dollars are being expended to provide the improvements,—but the town is good! Nothing is too good for the fastest growing and liveliest town in Central Pennsylvania.

Aaron Cortes and Al Irwin left to day for Buffalo, Montreal, Pittsburgh and the west.

TWO PRIZE ORATIONS.

All That Remain of the Many Works of Elijah Kellogg.

Generation after generation of our American schoolboys have declaimed "Spartacus to the Gladiators" or "Regulus to the Carthaginians" and probably never stopped to wonder what stenographer among the ancients took down these celebrated remarks. As a matter of fact, both were the work of a New England clergyman, Elijah Kellogg. "Spartacus" was written while he was a young theological student at Andover in 1842 for the rhetorical exercises of his class. "Regulus" was written three years later for a fellow student to speak in a prize competition.

Of all the work of Elijah Kellogg these alone remain known. Yet he wrote thirty wholesome books for boys, some of them tales of the woods and some of school, and was for years an eloquent pastor at the Seaman's church in Boston. He might have become a Talmage or a Beecher or a Brooks and gained fame in a more fashionable pulpit, but clung to the life work he had chosen.—Detroit Free Press.

THEY SAW THE LAKE FLY.

An African Phenomenon That Looked Like a Waterspout.

Crossing Victoria Nyansa, Maseru, F. H. Melland and E. H. Cholmeley, the authors of "Through the Heart of Africa," saw a phenomenon which, although common on the lakes of central Africa, seems rare enough.

The chief engineer on coming down late to luncheon told us that he had seen a waterspout near by. As we had finished our meal we hurried up on deck to get a glimpse of it. We saw near the southern horizon a gray smoke-like column arising from the surface of the lake and expanding into what looked like a cloud above. Thinking that it must be the engineer's waterspout, we approached Captain Gray and Mr. Aksey, who were also intently observing it, and asked them if we were right in our conjecture.

"Waterspout?" said the skipper, with a smile. "Flee."

"Flee?" we repeated and turned to Mr. Aksey in the hope of getting from him a more intelligible explanation.

"Quite true," he said. "Flee. You've seen the lake fly before?"

"No," we retorted, "we haven't, and we didn't know that it flew."

Assuring us that neither he nor the skipper had any intention of deceiving us, Mr. Aksey explained that he referred to the insect known as the "lake fly" and not to any spasmodic volatility on the part of the waters of Victoria Nyansa. The apparent waterspout was nothing more or less than a huge cloud composed of myriads of tiny flies. They sometimes rise from the surface of the lake in such dense columns as to obscure the light of the sun like a pillar of smoke.

PRISON SENTENCES FOR WHITE SLAVERS

Diggs and Caminetti Convicted Under Mann Law, Go to Jail

San Francisco, Sept. 18.—Judge Var Fleet yesterday afternoon sentenced Maury Diggs to two years imprisonment and a fine of $2,000, and Drew Caminetti was given 18 months and a fine of $1,500, on charges of violating the white slave law.

Some Notes on "Origins."

"Humpty Dumpty Sat on a Wall," etc., has come down to us from the days of King John. "The Babes in the Wood" dates from the fifteenth century, being founded upon facts, an old house near Wayland Wood, Norfolk, having the whole story in carvings on a mantelpiece. "Little Jack Horner," "Little Miss Muffet," "Old Mother Hubbard," "Mother Goosey" and "Goosey, Goosey Gander" are each traceable to the sixteenth century.

"Pussy Cat, Pussy Cat, Where Have You Been?" belongs to the reign of Queen Elizabeth. "Three Blind Mice" first appeared in a music book dated 1600. "A Froggie Would a-Wooling Go" was licensed to be sung as far back as 1600. "Boys and Girls Come Out to Play" and "Lucy Locket Lost Her Pocket" both hail from the period of Charles II. And, last of all, "Cinderella," "Jack the Giant Killer," "Bluebeard" and "Tom Thumb" were published by their author, Charles Perrault, in the year 1697.—London Notes and Queries.

Good evening! That rain was better than a nomination, wasn't it?

EXPLANATIONS.

Explaining the result of an election is something which is not at all pleasant to the side that loses.
Agreeing that the people rule, it is useless to complain about the verdict in the judgeship contest in this county, for a majority of the people have declared by vote that Singleton Bell and Allison O. Smith shall be their candidates for Judge at the November election. The people have also made it plain that they are not as unanimously in favor of continuing the fight against the liquor interests as was supposed, for Oscar Mitchell the people had a champion who, if nominated and elected, would have carried out their wishes on the bench.

The defeat of Mr. Mitchell does not indicate the disincorporation of the Washington party in this county for the judicial nomination was non-partisan, many Republicans and Democrats voted for Mr. Mitchell. While many Washington voters supported Mr. Bell, and Mr. Smith. What effect the comparatively small vote cast by Washington's party will have upon future elections remains to be learned. The judgeship contest was not a fair test of the strength of the Washington party, and this party may show its faith in the principles of the organization at succeeding elections.
In the meantime, voters of all political parties will watch with more or less interest the attempt to unite the Democratic party in the campaign that will be waged between now and the November election. Although Bell and Smith were nominated as non-partisans they are both members of the Democratic party, backed by factions of the Democratic party and both are ready to ask Democrats voters to stand by them.

CRUELTY TO CHILDREN

It is said that the three-year old son of Owen Johnson, the author, can converse in four languages. If this be true, the father of this preocious infant should be arrested and imprisoned for cruelty to children.
The child of three years who is taught three languages besides that of his native land is being cruelly treated and the parents who ask his son to perform such tasks is little less than a criminal.

Prodigies are not long-lived. The world has heard of children with remarkable intellects, but these children have never attained maturity.
It is better for an infant that it be taught how to play than to wreck its mentality by imposing arduous tasks upon its former mind. Author Johnson is a thoughtless fool.

Now that the non-partisan primaries in Clearfield county have brought about the nomination of two Democrats for judge there are a large number of persons in the county who feel that they have been deprived of the privilege of voting in an oversight for the candidates of their choice.
It is learned that there is a strong and growing sentiment throughout the county in favor of the Republican an-Washington voters forgetting their differences and combining in favor of an independent candidate for judge.

A crystallization of this sentiment would afford an opportunity to a large number of dissatisfied voters to record their verdict at the polls, and the election of the independent candidate might easily result, providing, of course, there are no legal complications in the way.

There is some consolation to Washington voters in the fact that James Sutton, Washington candidate for assessor in the First ward, will be on the November ticket.

Some voters seemed to have forgotten that primaries would be held Tuesday.

The next Burgess of Clearfield should be a man who will enforce the ordinances.

Several of the disappointed candidates have already determined to try again next time.

The World's Gypsies.

The gypsies have passed under a variety of names, arising either from their supposed original country or the callings and characteristics of the race.
The old English Egyptian, the Spanish
Gitanos and the Magyar Pharas nepek (Pharaoh's people) all point to an Egyptian origin. The Scandinavian Tatars identifies them with the Mongolian hordes which terrorized early Europe, while the French Bohemian suggests yet another country as their cradle.

As to the names bestowed by their supposed character, the Arab boldly calls them harami (a villain), the Dutchman heydens, or heathens, and the Persian takes his name from their complexion and dubs them karachi, or swarthy. A charter of William the Lion, as early as the twelfth century, mentions their Scotch name of tinkers, which is commonly supposed to be a corruption of tinkler, although possibly the substitution of "t" for "z" has produced this form of the Italian zingaro, one of the most widespread of gypsy appellations.—London Spectator.

The Moth and the Candle.

It is not because the moth is light-hearted, heedless and utterly frivolous, as we have always been told, that it plunges headlong into the flame, but because of the way that its body is constructed, says Kaempffert, the well known student of physical science.
There are two symmetrical points, exactly alike chemically, on the moth's body—namely, its eyes. If the rays of light modify the chemical conditions of one side more than the other then the moth's power of movement is affected. There is a stronger muscular tension on one side than on the other, and the moth is forced to move toward the source of light. If, however, one of the eyes is removed the chemical symmetry is destroyed and instead of plunging into the flame it moves about in a circle. There are other animals and insects besides the moth which are hopelessly in the grip of light.
If a snail is placed between a white wall and a black wall the unequal lighting forces it to crawl in a circle.—Chicago Tribune.

CURIOUS ALASKAN BIRDS.

Male Ptarmigan Woo In Two Tongues
and Bully Their Mates.

The ptarmigan, an Alaskan bird, is a wonderful imitator of man. If Bel-more Browne, who contributes an article on Alaskan game to Outing, is to be believed, "To begin with, the author finds that the ptarmigan is a linguist of no mean ability. The male does his wooing in mixed French and English:
"A pleasing side of their mating is the habit of the males of uttering their call while on the wing. They commence with a guttural cackle, which they utter faster and faster until they alight, when they end their song by repeating slowly a call that sounds like ged-up, ged-up, ged-up, ged-up or parlez vous? parlez vous? parlez vous?
as they strut proudly about."

In addition to singing in two languages, the ptarmigan conducts his personal and domestic affairs in approved fashion. Could not the following observation apply to human beings as well as to this remarkable bird:
"The males fight constantly, and the females seem to enjoy these battles and sit about clucking among themselves.
"But once a hen has decided on a mate she comes into her own share of troubles and is beaten and bullied by the mate she has promised to love and obey."

Inexpensive Monotony.

"When I got the order to design a big wholesale house for a firm that has stores in six cities I was elated," said an architect. "I'll plan a building that is bound to be satisfactory. I said to myself, 'and then they will give me the commission for those new stores they expect to put up in those other five cities.'"

"Well, I did turn out a splendid store, a store that was admired by everybody in the wholesale trade. My patrons were pleased, too, but instead of giving me an order for those other buildings they simply used the same plans over again and built all their houses alike. That's what I call playing a low down trick on a fellow."—Philadelphia Ledger.

FIGURES IN TRAGEDY.

Dr. Muret, Dentist. Held
As Counterfeiter, and Zech Girl, Who Was Released.

Students of character and facial resemblance have pointed to the marked similarity of features of Hans Schmidt, the confessed slayer of Anna Ammiller, the girl whose torso was found in the Hudson river, and Dr. Ernest A. Muret, held on a charge of counterfeiting. No definite evidence has appeared that will connect the dentist with aiding in the killing, but detectives are working on the case. It is believed that both have displayed evidence of insanity. Bertha Zech, also shown in the picture, was employed by the dentist and was held as a material witness, but later released.

THAW REMOVED; TO FACE GOVERNOR

Prisoner Jubilant and Plays
Piano For Admirers.

Littleton, N. H., Sept. 18.—Harry Kendall Thaw moved on to Concord the capital, to await the hearing before Governor Peck on Tuesday in the matter of his extradition. Safe in the knowledge that the United States district court will review his case on a writ of habeas corpus if he loses, the Mattawam fugitive was hopeful and light hearted and smiled and waved at the crowds which greeted him on the way to the railway station.
Thaw celebrated his recent victory over William Travers Jerome by playing the piano in the parlor where he had been quartered here. Around him sat an admiring throng of hotel patrons. He played classical music mostly and avoided modern ragtime.

Chauffeur Freed in Sherbrooke.

Sherbrooke, Quebec, Sept. 18.—"Gien-temani" Roger Thompson, the chauffeur who drove Harry K. Thaw away from Mattawam in a big black touring car, was set at liberty. The crown authorities said they had no evidence to offer against him.

LIND SILENT ON MESSAGE.

Waits to Hear What Wilson Thinks of Huerta's Utterance.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, Sept. 18.—John Lind, President Wilson's special envoy to Mexico, was anxiously awaiting the views of his chief on Provisional President Huerta's message read at the opening of the Mexican congress.

Mr. Lind said that he attached much importance to what the president thinks of the message and that Wilson's interpretation of Huerta's utterance would undoubtedly have an important bearing on further negotiations between the two countries.

TRAILING SENDER OF BOMBS.

Life of Otis.

Washington, Sept. 18.—A rigid investigation of the latest attempt upon the life of General Harrison Gray Otis at Los Angeles is being made by the postoffice inspectors.

No official report yet has been received at the postoffice department on the sending of a bomb to Otis through the mails, but one is expected.

BATTLESHIPS TO STAY IN MEXICO

Huerta's Declaration Has No Effect on Wilson.

PROTECT INTERESTS OF U. S.

Pointed Out That Presence is Desirable as Long as Government Continues in State of Chaos—Mexican Flags Across Border Line Pulled Down, American Flag Substituted

Washington Sept 18.—American battleships probably will remain in Mexican waters notwithstanding General Huerta's declaration that they will be unwelcome after another month. There was no official expression of this government's attitude, but it was plainly indicated that the United States will keep its vessels on the coast in Pacific coast and Atlantic coast as long as the present uncertainty of American waters exists. It was pointed out that in international law the United States clearly has a right to protect its interests in a foreign country where internal disorders prevail and to that end may dispatch warships to ports where American interests demand protection.

Within the last year American ships also have been dispatched on such missions to ports in Nicaragua, Venezuela and the Dominican Republic, where revolution or threatened revolt made Americans apprehensive of their interests. Visits from vessels of the Asiatic fleet have calmed the fears of Americans in the Chinese revolutionary districts.

It was pointed out that American warships in Mexican waters would continue to adhere strictly to the injunction of President Huerta not to "entail an attack upon the dignity and sovereignty of Mexico" but further than that it is not likely that the Wilson administration will accept a dictation from Huerta as to the circumstances under which American vessels may lie off the Mexican coast.

Mexican Flags Pulled Down
Brownsville Tex Sept 18.—United States soldiers hauled down several Mexican flags at a Mexican independent one day celebration about forty miles from here on the American side of the border. The Mexicans then raised an American flag. Students of El Paso Tex. also pulled down Mexican flags until the Mexicans ordered them to stand.

MRS. SULZER TO TESTIFY AT HEARING

Ready to Lift Curtain on Drama.

BOTH SIDES CONFIDENT

May Require Forty Votes to Convict Sulzer.

SPECULATION ON OUTCOME.

Defense Continues a Mystery, and Attorneys Refuse to Make Known Plans—Judges and Senators Establish a Line of Procedure—Principals Assemble at State Capital.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 18.—Legislators, lawyers, judges, politicians and spectators flocked to Albany to participate in and witness the most spectacular political event in New York history—the impeachment and trial of a governor of the Empire State. Governor William Sulzer must face his accusers and answer to charges of "high crimes and misdemeanors."

Mrs. Sulzer will be one of the most important witnesses for the defense, according to the governor's friends. She will tell her own story of the stock deals in her own way before the bar of the impeachment court. This will lead an intensely human touch to a proceeding about which there is still very much mystery. She will probably be able to clear up with her own lips the inside truth of the allegation, made by the friends of Sulzer, that the speculative deal was a trap.

Judge Cullen a Great Figure. Edgar M. Cullen, chief judge of the court of appeals, stands out as a great figure in the case. He is admittedly a fearless jurist. Nothing has ever awed him in his sworn duty but his belief in the right. He retires from office on Dec. 31 next, simply because he has reached the age limit.

The stage for the trial is set in the gorgeous senate chamber of the monumental capitol, a lofty room converted into a legislative hall into a courtroom and arranged for stately and solemn effects. Crimson tapestries embellished with the emblems of the state hang on the walls. The furniture is of mahogany, the ceilings gorgeous with art decorations. All the setting is designed to display the majesty and the power of the greatest state in the Union impeaching its chief executive. Albany is busy with rehearsals of the actors who will enact the leading roles. The board of managers, who have been accumulating evidence in New York city, came up to this city bearing the mass of documents and accompanied by their counsel. The governor and his lawyers met in conference, planning the defense and watchful of every move of the accusers' forces.

The governor himself was amazingly confident, but holding strictly to the silence imposed upon him by his counsel. No one can predict with certainty the result. Each side asserts its confidence. Neither side knows.

Sulzer's Friends Planned Rally. A public demonstration against Tammany was scheduled. The Sulzer adherents promised vigorous demonstrations and perhaps sensational disclosures, showing the motives of this prosecution of the governor by his enemies. The machinery of the government has broken down during the months of contest between governor and legislature. Expenditures have run wild. Administration efficiency is lost. There is chaos instead of system. Co-operation between departments has disappeared in dissension and factional quarrels. The state is almost without a business government.

All the arrangements and the course of procedure have been copied from the trial of Andrew Johnson, president of the United States nearly half a century ago, when congress sought to remove him from office and failed by a single vote. There is the same uncertainty prevailing in Albany. All attempts to forecast how the members of the court will vote have proved futile.

From 55 to 59 Men to Sit. Two-thirds of all the members present must vote the governor guilty before he can be removed from office. The combined membership of the court of appeals and senate, if all places were filled, would be sixty-one. The senate

FACTS ABOUT SULZER IMPEACHMENT TRIAL.

Will last anywhere from four weeks to two months, it is estimated. All business of the court of appeals, including the cases of Charles Becker and the New York gun men, will be delayed for weeks. Reorganization of the labor department and all prison reforms will be postponed indefinitely. Appointments of two public service commissioners, three supreme court justices and many other officials will be held up. The cost of the trial is estimated at about $200,000, divided as follows: Counsel for Mr. Sulzer and the state, $100,000; salaries for justices and senators, $25,000; stenographic work for both sides, $50,000; clerk hire and printing, $25,000. The loss to the state in the delay of work and through the disorganization of the administrative forces will be large.

has fifty-one members, but there are two vacancies, one caused by the resignation of Franklin D. Roosevelt to become assistant secretary of the navy, the other by the conviction and imprisonment of Stephen J. Stillwell for bribery.

This leaves the senate with forty-nine members. It has not been determined just how many judges of the court of appeals will sit. There are seven elected members and three justices of the supreme court serving in the higher court by special designation. The court will hold a conference and determine whether all ten or only the seven elected judges will participate in the impeachment trial.

Under these circumstances the court of impeachment will consist of between fifty-five and fifty-nine members. To convict will require thirty-eight or forty votes, according to the total number that will assemble in the senate chamber.

Three "Unknown Quantities."

There are three unknown quantities to be determined as the case proceeds: First—Questions of law. It is conceded that the rulings of the eminent judges of the court of appeals will have predominating weight with the senators in passing upon this phase of the trial. Public sentiment is such that few senators would presume to set up their opinions against the decisions of the judges, who are considered to be absolutely unbiased by the political considerations so strongly in the case.

Second—The evidence. While much of this has been made public already, Tammany leaders assert that they have in reserve more damaging testimony tending to show that the governor has committed many financial crimes. Third—Political exigencies. It has been assumed that the most of the Republican senators will be inclined to vote for the governor whenever legitimate opportunity offers, so that he may continue in office to complete the disruption of Tammany. Democratic senators from up state districts, too, have been hearing from home, where there is strong sympathy for the governor.

One of the most important questions of law to be determined is whether acts committed by the governor before he was sworn into office on Jan. 1 can be considered in connection with his impeachment.

No Fancy Shaves For Him.

Militants Attempt to Destroy Penhurst Place.

London, Sept. 18.—A desperate attempt by a suffragette "arson squad" to burn down Penhurst place, the historic fourteenth century country seat of Lord De L'Isle and Dudley at Tunbridge, Kent, was made.

The inmates of the great mansion, awakened by the crackling of wood and by clouds of smoke, found the framework of a number of windows ablaze. Household employees extinguished the flames.

Two women were seen fleeing across the lawn in front of the building, and a large amount of suffrage literature was found in the grounds. Heaps of rags soaked in petroleum were discovered in several places.

Great indignation prevails among neighboring residents, as it is thought probable that the mansion, hitherto open to visitors, may be closed. It contains invaluable portraits of ancestors of the holder of the title, whose family name is Sidney.

UNCLE AND NIECE ARE MISSING

Osceola Mills Girl Said To

MAN IN CASE IS MARRIED

Alleged That Verna Walker, Aged 17 Years, Ran Away With Her Uncle Aged 35, from Latter's Home in Avis—Clinton County Authorities After Them.

A telegraphic dispatch from Jersey Shore contains a story of local interest, a girl from Osceola Mills figuring in the reported elopement of a married man and his niece. The dispatch says:

Leon Walker, of Avis, 35 years old, is a much wanted man since last week when he is said to have eloped with his niece, Verna Walker, of Osceola Mills, a girl of 17.

They disappeared at the same time, it is alleged, and from the disclosure since is the belief that they went together. Since vanishing nothing has been heard of them and no track of either has so far been obtained.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker had been living a happy and exemplary married life so far as could be judged from appearances until the girl became a member of the family circle.

Visited Walker Home. She came, the story goes, at the earnest solicitation of her uncle, and after some hesitation on the part of her parents, who finally gave their consent to permit their daughter to remain with her aunt, for a limited time only, as her aunt was not in good health, and as her husband was employed in the Avis shops, he was away from home all day. Consequently Mrs. Walker was lonely and nervous.

After the arrival of Miss Walker in the home everything appeared to be going along nicely until Mrs. Walker noticed that her husband and his niece appeared to be greatly interested in each other and were together much of the time when the former was not at work.

Alienated His Affections.

The observing wife, becoming convinced finally that the niece was taking her place in the affections of the husband, remonstrated with the latter and asked that he forthwith send the girl to her home. This he declined to do and challenged his wife to issue the order of dismissal, at the same time informing her that if she sent the girl away he would also leave. This threat caused the wife to submit to the existing conditions, but at the end of a few days her husband and the girl quietly slipped away, leaving for parts unknown. This is the situation today. District Attorney H. T. Hall, of Clinton county is trying to locate them and expects to do so in time.

BICKFORD-READ

Wedding of Two of Clearfield's
Young People Wednesday.

At high noon Wednesday, September 17, at the beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Read, occurred the marriage of their daughter Leda H., an only child, to Wade P. Bickford.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. G. Carl of the Baptist church, in the presence of the immediate relatives of the contracting parties, to the number of twenty-two.

After an elaborate wedding dinner the happy couple started on an extended tour over the New York Central lines to points in the Catskills and other places of interest in New York. Upon their return they will reside in Clearfield.

The best wishes of a host friends of the young couple are extended to them.

The Old Painter.

An anecdote which Charles Francis Adams told years ago to the young Henry Cabot Lodge was retold by him in Scribner's. It was one of Gilbert Stuart and of Mr. Adams' grandfather.

Stuart painted a portrait of John Adams in extreme old age, when he was nearing his ninetieth year. It is a very fine portrait of the old man leaning on his cane. Charles Francis Adams, a boy of eighteen, used to keep his grandfather company during the sittings and watch the painter at work. He said that Stuart, who was old, too, and near the end of his career, was physically feeble. Both his hands shook violently. From a quivering palette he would take his color, and with his brush shaking and trembling he would touch the picture. Mr. Adams said it looked as if he might dash the paint on anywhere, but the brush always touched the portrait, extraordinary as it seemed. In exactly the right spot and in the right way. Despite his shaking hands and trembling fingers the old artist never made a mistake.

Bear Hunting in India.

Among the sports of India is the capturing of bears, and to this curious means are sometimes devised. For example, four or five sturdy men are armed, two with long spears cross barred on the handles close to the sharp two edged blade, and two or three with ten foot bamboos, of which the ends are smeared with bird lime. These hunters sally forth with dogs before dawn. They pass along the base of the hills with the fresh morning wind blowing up the plains below. Should the hunters be lucky it is not long before the dogs find the bear. The dogs are slipped and disappear in the semidarkness. Soon their roaring and growling indicate that they have found the game. The hunters run up to the spot where the bear is fighting with the dogs. The men with the limed poles poke the bear in the ribs and adroitly twist the ends in its long hair, thus holding it fast on each flank. The apesmen complete the operation by repeated spear thrusts.

BUILDING BOOM HAS STARTED

New Homes Being Erected But More Are Needed

IMPROVEMENTS DURING YEAR

Business Places Undergo Changes—Greatest Need is Dwelling Houses in the East End for Use of Workingmen—Clearfield Best Town in the State.

The Chamber of Commerce has issued the following proclamation:

Clearfield is enjoying a real building boom. Listen to this! Including the new houses now being built on the West Side of the river and those completed there within the past few months, nearly a score of new homes have been added to Clearfield in that one district, and several others are now being considered there.

East End, the part of town most in need of new houses, has not provided many. With an immense sewer pipe works covering acres, nearly completed, with thousands of dollars expended for improvements and extensions by the N. Y. C. & H. R. R. including the new coal car rebuilding and repair shops 30 x 536 feet and all other industries around the hill fairly jumping with prosperity, one would naturally expect to see a hundred new homes and other private buildings going up there.

Should Start Something.

One would naturally feel that East End's absolute guarantee of an increase of more than 1000 in population within a year would "start something" over there.

Wake up, East End! Take your saw and hammer and trowel and get busy! Fortune has been thrust upon you and you don't realize it. Grasp the opportunity! Get busy! build some houses where they are needed.

But we are wandering. We started out to tell you about the building boom.

New Houses Built.

To the score and more houses that have been built and are building there add the large silk velvet mill the sewer pipe works, the car rebuilding and repair shop, Kurtz Brothers' large new printing plant and tablet factory, the new building and improvements made by the Clearfield Machine Shop, Orcutt & Buchanan's large fire proof garage, D. W. Speck's handsome three story store and office building, Lelzinger Brothers five story department store building (which when completed will be the last word in modern store construction), the beautiful double front stone room of the J. G. McCrory Company, the H. & C. Telephone Company's new fire proof exchange building, Louis Shapiro about to build one of the finest store front in the state, and Stern Brothers just completing a fine new store room.

Then, there is the railroad terminal of the Whitmer-Steele company.

And we must not forget that Fred Schmidt, A. Mirkin and Robinson & Company have recently finished and opened new store rooms. The Sugar Bowl was also refinished and opened within the past twelve months.

More to the Story.

Nor are we yet through with our story of Clearfield's building boom. The first floor of the Murray building was completely renovated and rearranged by the Penn Public Service company, which has one of the most up-to-date show rooms and business offices of its kind in the state. Further the rolling mill has a large force of men engaged in adding new equipment, making repairs, rebuilding, unloading steel, etc., preparing for a large business operation.

The second street bridge is in fine condition, having been paved with creosoted wooden blocks and now the Market street bridge is also being put in good repair and paved with creosoted blocks.

All these and many improvements not mentioned, show that Clearfield is building for the future as well as for today. Hundreds of thousands of dollars are being expended to provide the improvements,—but the town is good! Nothing is too good for the fastest growing and liveliest town in Central Pennsylvania.

Aaron Cortes and Al Irwin left to day for Buffalo, Montreal, Pittsburgh and the west.

TWO PRIZE ORATIONS.

All That Remain of the Many Works of Elijah Kellogg.

Generation after generation of our American schoolboys have declaimed "Spartacus to the Gladiators" or "Regulus to the Carthaginians" and probably never stopped to wonder what stenographer among the ancients took down these celebrated remarks. As a matter of fact, both were the work of a New England clergyman, Elijah Kellogg. "Spartacus" was written while he was a young theological student at Andover in 1842 for the rhetorical exercises of his class. "Regulus" was written three years later for a fellow student to speak in a prize competition.

What college youth of these days could write such forceful orations? These have never been surpassed, and in some schools it has become necessary to bar them from the list at prize speaking competitions, so invariably do they carry off the prizes.

Of all the work of Elijah Kellogg these alone remain known. Yet he wrote thirty wholesome books for boys, some of them tales of the woods and some of school, and was for years an eloquent pastor at the Seaman's church in Boston. He might have become a Talmage or a Beecher or a Brooks and gained fame in a more fashionable pulpit, but clung to the life work he had chosen.—Detroit Free Press.

THEY SAW THE LAKE FLY.

An African Phenomenon That Looked Like a Waterspout.

Crossing Victoria Nyansa, Maseru, F. H. Melland and E. H. Cholmeley, the authors of "Through the Heart of Africa," saw a phenomenon which, although common on the lakes of central Africa, seems rare enough.

The chief engineer on coming down late to luncheon told us that he had seen a waterspout near by. As we had finished our meal we hurried up on deck to get a glimpse of it. We saw near the southern horizon a gray smoke-like column arising from the surface of the lake and expanding into what looked like a cloud above. Thinking that it must be the engineer's waterspout, we approached Captain Gray and Mr. Aksey, who were also intently observing it, and asked them if we were right in our conjecture.

"Waterspout?" said the skipper, with a smile. "Files."

"Files?" we repeated and turned to Mr. Aksey in the hope of getting from him a more intelligible explanation.

"Quite true," he said. "Files. You've seen the lake fly before?"

"No," we retorted, "we haven't, and we didn't know that it flew."

Assuring us that neither he nor the skipper had any intention of deceiving us, Mr. Aksey explained that he referred to the insect known as the "lake fly" and not to any spasmodic volatility on the part of the waters of Victoria Nyansa. The apparent waterspout was nothing more or less than a huge cloud composed of myriads of tiny flies. They sometimes rise from the surface of the lake in such dense columns as to obscure the light of the sun like a pillar of smoke.

PRISON SENTENCES FOR WHITE SLAVERS

Diggs and Caminetti Convicted
Under Mann Law, Go to Jail

San Francisco, Sept. 18.—Judge Var Fleet yesterday afternoon sentenced Maury Diggs to two years imprisonment and a fine of $2,000, and Drew Caminetti was given 18 months and a fine of $1,500, on charges of violating the white slave law.

Some Notes on "Origins."

"Humpty Dumpty Sat on a Wall," etc., has come down to us from the days of King John. "The Babes in the Wood" dates from the fifteenth century, being founded upon facts, an old house near Wayland Wood, Norfolk, having the whole story in carvings on a mantelpiece. "Little Jack Horner," "Little Miss Muffet," "Old Mother Hubbard," "Mother Goosey" and "Goosey, Goosey Gander" are each traceable to the sixteenth century.

"Pussy Cat, Pussy Cat, Where Have You Been?" belongs to the reign of Queen Elizabeth. "Three Blind Mice" first appeared in a music book dated 1600. "A Froggie Would a-Wooling Go" was licensed to be sung as far back as 1600. "Boys and Girls Come Out to Play" and "Lucy Locket Lost Her Pocket" both hail from the period of Charles II. And, last of all, "Cinderella," "Jack the Giant Killer," "Bluebeard" and "Tom Thumb" were published by their author, Charles Perrault, in the year 1697.—London Notes and Queries.

Good evening! That rain was better than a nomination, wasn't it?

EXPLANATIONS.

Explaining the result of an election is something which is not at all pleasant to the side that loses. Agreeing that the people rule, it is useless to complain about the verdict in the judgeship contest in this county, for a majority of the people have declared by vote that Singleton Bell and Allison O. Smith shall be their candidates for Judge at the November election. The people have also made it plain that they are not as unanimously in favor of continuing the fight against the liquor interests as was supposed, for Oscar Mitchell the people had a champion who, if nominated and elected, would have carried out their wishes on the bench.

The defeat of Mr. Mitchell does not indicate the disintegration of the Washington party in this county for the judicial nomination was non-partisan, many Republicans and Democrats voted for Mr. Mitchell. While many Washington voters supported Mr. Bell and Mr. Smith. What effect the comparatively small vote cast by Washington's party will have upon future elections remains to be learned. The judgeship contest was not a fair test of the strength of the Washington party, and this party may show its faith in the principles of the organization at succeeding elections. In the meantime, voters of all political parties will watch with more or less interest the attempt to unite the Democratic party in the campaign that will be waged between now and the November election. Although Bell and Smith were nominated as non-partisans they are both members of the Democratic party, backed by factions of the Democratic party and both are ready to ask Democrats voters to stand by them.

CRUELTY TO CHILDREN

It is said that the three-year old son of Owen Johnson, the author, can converse in four languages. If this be true, the father of this precocious infant should be arrested and imprisoned for cruelty to children. The child of three years who is taught three languages besides that of his native land is being cruelly treated and the parents who ask his son to perform such tasks is little less than a criminal.

Prodigies are not long-lived. The world has heard of children with remarkable intellects, but these children have never attained maturity. It is better for an infant that it be taught how to play than to wreck its mentality by imposing arduous tasks upon its former mind. Author Johnson is a thoughtless fool.

Now that the non-partisan primary is in Clearfield county have brought about the nomination of two Democrats for judge there are a large number of persons in the county who feel that they have been deprived of the privilege of voting in November for the candidates of their choice. It is learned that there is a strong and growing sentiment throughout the county in favor of the Republican and Washington voters forgetting their differences and combining in favor of an independent candidate for judge. A crystallization of this sentiment would afford an opportunity to a large number of dissatisfied voters to record their verdict at the polls, and the election of the independent candidate might easily result, providing, of course, there are no legal complications in the way.

There is some consolation to Washington voters in the fact that James Sutton, Washington candidate for assessor in the First ward, will be on the November ticket.

Some voters seemed to have forgotten that primaries would be held Tuesday.

The next Burgess of Clearfield should be a man who will enforce the ordinances.

Several of the disappointed candidates have already determined to try again next time.

The World's Gypsies.

The gypsies have passed under a variety of names, arising either from their supposed original country or the callings and characteristics of the race. The old English Egyptian, the Spanish Gitanos and the Magyar Pharas nepek (Pharaoh's people) all point to an Egyptian origin. The Scandinavian Tatars identifies them with the Mongolian hordes which terrorized early Europe, while the French Bohemians suggests yet another country as their cradle.

As to the names bestowed by their supposed character, the Arab boldly calls them harami (a villain), the Dutchman heydens, or heathens, and the Persian takes his name from their complexion and dubs them karachi, or swarthy. A charter of William the Lion, as early as the twelfth century, mentions their Scotch name of tinklers, which is commonly supposed to be a corruption of tinkler, although possibly the substitution of "t" for "z" has produced this form of the Italian zingaro, one of the most widespread of gypsy appellations.—London Spectator.

The Moth and the Candle.

It is not because the moth is light-hearted, heedless and utterly frivolous, as we have always been told, that it plunges headlong into the flame, but because of the way that its body is constructed, says Kaempffert, the well known student of physical science. There are two symmetrical points, exactly alike chemically, on the moth's body—namely, its eyes. If the rays of light modify the chemical conditions of one side more than the other then the moth's power of movement is affected. There is a stronger muscular tension on one side than on the other, and the moth is forced to move toward the source of light. If, however, one of the eyes is removed the chemical symmetry is destroyed and instead of plunging into the flame it moves about in a circle. There are other animals and insects besides the moth which are hopelessly in the grip of light. If a snail is placed between a white wall and a black wall the unequal lighting forces it to crawl in a circle.—Chicago Tribune.

CURIOUS ALASKAN BIRDS.

Male Ptarmigan Woo In Two Tongues and Bully Their Mates.

The ptarmigan, an Alaskan bird, is a wonderful imitator of man. If Belmore Browne, who contributes an article on Alaskan game to Outing, is to be believed. To begin with, the author finds that the ptarmigan is a linguist of no mean ability. The male does his wooing in mixed French and English: "A pleasing side of their mating is the habit of the males of uttering their call while on the wing. They commence with a guttural cackle, which they utter faster and faster until they alight, when they end their song by repeating slowly a call that sounds like ged-up, ged-up, ged-up, or parlez vous? parlez vous? parlez vous? as they strut proudly about."

In addition to singing in two languages, the ptarmigan conducts his personal and domestic affairs in approved fashion. Could not the following observation apply to human beings as well as to this remarkable bird: "The males fight constantly, and the hens seem to enjoy these battles and sit about clucking among themselves. "But once a hen has decided on a mate she comes into her own share of troubles and is beaten and bullied by the mate she has promised to love and obey."

Inexpensive Monotony.
"When I got the order to design a big wholesale house for a firm that has stores in six cities I was elated," said an architect. "I'll plan a building that is bound to be satisfactory. I said to myself, 'and then they will give me the commission for those new stores they expect to put up in those other five cities.'"

"Well, I did turn out a splendid store, a store that was admired by everybody in the wholesale trade. My patrons were pleased, too, but instead of giving me an order for those other buildings they simply used the same plans over again and built all their houses alike. That's what I call playing a low down trick on a fellow."—Philadelphia Ledger.

FIGURES IN TRAGEDY.

Dr. Muret, Dentist. Held As Counterfeiter, and Zech Girl, Who Was Released.

Students of character and facial resemblance have pointed to the marked similarity of features of Hans Schmidt, the confessed slayer of Anna Ammiller, the girl whose torso was found in the Hudson river, and Dr. Ernest A. Muret, held on a charge of counterfeiting. No definite evidence has appeared that will connect the dentist with aiding in the killing, but detectives are working on the case. It is believed that both have displayed evidence of insanity. Bertha Zech, also shown in the picture, was employed by the dentist and was held as a material witness, but later released.

THAW REMOVED; TO FACE GOVERNOR

Prisoner Jubilant and Plays Piano For Admirers.

Littleton, N. H., Sept. 18.—Harry Kendall Thaw moved on to Concord the capital, to await the hearing before Governor Peck on Tuesday in the matter of his extradition. Safe in the knowledge that the United States district court will review his case on a writ of habeas corpus if he loses, the Mattamoras fugitive was hopeful and light-hearted and smiled and waved at the crowds which greeted him on the way to the railway station. Thaw celebrated his recent victory over William Travers Jerome by paying the piano in the parlor where he had been quartered here. Around him sat an admiring throng of hotel patrons. He played classical music mostly and avoided modern ragtime.

Chauffeur Freed In Sherbrooke.

Sherbrooke, Quebec, Sept. 18.—"Gentlemen" Roger Thompson, the chauffeur who drove Harry K. Thaw away from Mattamoras in a big black touring car, was set at liberty. The crown authorities said they had no evidence to offer against him.

LIND SILENT ON MESSAGE.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, Sept. 18.—John Lind, President Wilson's special envoy to Mexico, was anxiously awaiting the views of his chief on Provisional President Huerta's message read at the opening of the Mexican congress.

Mr. Lind said that he attached much importance to what the president thinks of the message and that Wilson's interpretation of Huerta's utterance would undoubtedly have an important bearing on further negotiations between the two countries.

BATTLESHIPS TO STAY IN MEXICO

Huerta's Declaration Has No Effect on Wilson.

PROTECT INTERESTS OF U. S.

Pointed Out That Presence is Desirable as Long as Government Continues in State of Chaos—Mexican Flags Across Border Line Pulled Down, American Flag Substituted

Washington Sept 18.—American battleships probably will remain in Mexican waters notwithstanding General Huerta's declaration that they will be unwelcome after another month. There was no official expression of this government's attitude, but it was plainly indicated that the United States will keep its vessels on the coast in Pacific coast and Atlantic coast as long as the present uncertainty of American waters exists. It was pointed out that in international law the United States clearly has a right to protect its interests in a foreign country where internal disorders prevail and to that end may dispatch warships to ports where American interests demand protection.

Within the last year American ships also have been dispatched on such missions to ports in Nicaragua, Venezuela and the Dominican Republic, where revolution or threatened revolt made Americans apprehensive of their interests. Visits from vessels of the Asiatic fleet have calmed the fears of Americans in the Chinese revolutionary districts.

It was pointed out that American warships in Mexican waters would continue to adhere strictly to the injunction of President Huerta not to "entail an attack upon the dignity and sovereignty of Mexico," but further than that it is not likely that the Wilson administration will accept a dictation from Huerta as to the circumstances under which American vessels may be off the Mexican coast.

Mexican Flags Pulled Down
Brownsville Tex Sept 18.—United States soldiers hauled down several Mexican flags at a Mexican independent one day celebration about forty miles from here on the American side of the border. The Mexicans then raised an American flag. Students of El Paso Tex. also pulled down Mexican flags until the Mexicans ordered them to stand.

FRECKLES Coming

WALLACETON.

Not much noise here on Election day. Only half the votes were cast. James H. Kelly carried the borough for judge.

James K. Turner, return judge of election took the returns to Clearfield on Wednesday.

E. M. Frame, of Hollidaysburg, came here for a few days visit. Then accompanied by his father, Alexander Frame, he went on a pleasure trip including Washington, D. C., Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Gettysburg, Baltimore and Williamsport.

A much needed rain is falling as we send in our news. Lots of wells in our city were very nearly dry.

Our esteemed post master, G. P. Goss was at Clearfield on Wednesday, no doubt listening to the election returns.

Doc Buzzard drove his son Vogan to Burnside in his Ford car on Sunday where the latter is principal of above named town's high school.

As the race in the big leagues draw to a close our baseball sports are sure their favorite clubs will clinch the pennants in their respective leagues. Next they will be anxious as to the results of the world series, which now feels certain to be played between McGraw's N. Y. Giants and Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics.

Several of our young folks contemplate a trip on Sunday to Penn's cave near Centre Hall, while another bunch expects to take advantage of the excursion to Watkins Glen, N. Y.

Miss Emily Dixon, whose last year taught school in Boggs township near Stoneville and whose work must have been satisfactory has again been employed by the Boggs township school board to teach the Centre school only a short distance from her home in our town.

Ellsworth Shimmel one of our town young fellows has composed with ten and has for sale song words and music entitled "Strolling With My Sweet Heart" for a sample copy give the boy a call or address him.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hobbs. Once the latter formerly one of our town girls were in our city on Sunday.

The habit is or used to be your child's habit to write copy. It is clear as ready to write.

OTHER CRIMES ARE TRACED TO PRIEST

Accused of Robbing Church of Easter Collection.
STOLE FROM AN OLD PRIEST

Evidence Unearthed by Detectives Shows That Schmidt May Have Become Master Criminal of the Age Had Not He Been Caught—Prosecution Bure of Conviction.

New York, Sept. 18.—In looking up the activities of Hans Schmidt, the Jekyll-Hyde priest, during the period immediately preceding the murder of Anna Aumiller Inspector Faurst and his men have learned that Schmidt stole $400 of the Easter collection at St. Joseph's church last spring and also robbed his fellow priests as they slept. It has also been discovered that Schmidt robbed a visiting priest who spent the night at St. Joseph's rectory as a guest of the pastor.

Those larcenies were not traced to Schmidt by the pastor or the curates. It was not until Inspector Faurst and his detectives turned Schmidt's room over in a search for evidence that the robbery of an aged priest was cleared up. Not so long ago a priest who was called on the Rev. Father Huntman, the venerable pastor of St. Joseph's. The visitor said that he was not well, and Father Huntman urged his brother clergyman not to think of continuing his journey before morning, but to remain overnight at the rectory. The visiting priest missed his wallet next day. A search of the room failed to disclose the missing purse or money. The servants were questioned, but they knew nothing about the private loss.

After the arrest and confession of Schmidt Faurst and his men went up to the rectory in Harlem and searched the alleged priest's room, on one of the upper floors. They found the chamber decorated with crucifixes and pictures of scenes from Holy Writ. In a corner stood a large wardrobe, and on the top shelf was a round bundle done up in far paper such as wrapped the torso found in the Hudson river and bound with the same kind of wire.

The package was taken down, the wires were cut, and it was discovered that the pseudo priest had brought back to his room in the parish house the cloths and the scrubbing brush with which he effaced the blood stains of the murder chamber.

CHASE AND HIS COCK.

Members of Court of Appeals, Appointed to Office, Not Elected.

Many members of the New York state senate were glad to receive the news that when the vote on the impeachment case against Governor Sulzer was taken the members of the court of appeals would cast their ballots before the roll of the senate was called. Thus each senator may know how the majority of the court voted before their making known whether they will vote for or against the impeachment. Whether Judges Hisecock, Chase and Miller, designated by the supreme court, will join the seven members of the court of appeals was an interesting point before a decision was reached. If these three judges, together with the seven others, sit with the forty-nine members of the senate the two-thirds vote required to expel Mr. Sulzer, as calculated by the impeachment managers, would be forty Judge Chase is shown at the top and Judge Hisecock at the bottom.

CARLYLE AND THE SEA.

The Ebbing Tide Gave the Philosopher a Text For a Sermon.

In "John Foster and His Friendships" the author records an incident markedly characteristic of Thomas Carlyle. The author finds the great Scot at 8 o'clock one morning in 1878 on the Chelsea embankment gazing at the Thames. Here is the incident, hitherto unpublished:

I should as soon have thought of assaulting as of addressing him. Happily I was spared anything of the kind, for the old man, reserved as he was to the point of moroseness—surliness, his enemies called it—hastily fung a query at me. The tide was out, I may mention, the river being at its lowest. "Where goes it? Where goes it?"

The very manner of his saying it sharpened my wits, and I gathered, of course, that he referred to the stream or what there was of it.

Smilingly I replied that it returned to the sea. "Right, sir, right!" he snapped out. Then, relapsing into his meditative mood, he said softly, but impressively: "The great, great sea of God Almighty's goodness, and we are all returning to go that far. Don't forget that, sir—returning to the sea—the great Unlimited sea!" With that he abruptly turned away and moved across the roadway toward Cheyne row with that curious slow shuffle habitual with him, and I saw him no more.

Going the Limit.

Jones—If Mr. Oldboy makes any such assertion I will denounce him as a liar. President—Mr. Jones, I will call you to order. Our bylaws do not allow you to go that far. Jones—Then I call Mr. Oldboy a liar as far as it is permitted by the bylaws of this association.—London Telegraph.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Desire to Sell Causes Recession. Reading Makes Big Advance.

New York, Sept. 17.

There was a large demand for Reading at the opening, and trading in that stock was attended with considerable excitement. The first sales were recorded as 12,000 shares at 10 1/2 to 10 3/4, and in the next few minutes a further advance to 10 7/8 was recorded. Large blocks of this stock were dealt in all through the first few minutes, and the price yielded one point on realizing. A heavy tone prevailed in the rest of the list generally. Nearly all the professional element on the floor was disposed to sell stocks all through the first hour, and the pressure from this source alone was sufficient to cause recessions throughout the list. The trading in Reading continued on a large scale, but the stock showed little rallying tendency after its reaction of one point.

In the first few minutes all kinds of stories were current to explain the accumulation in this stock. That finding must be leavers was that the stock would be put on a 10 per cent dividend basis. According to board rumors, this action was scheduled for today. There were also renewed rumors about a probable negotiation of the coal properties. Rock Island common and preferred were both extremely weak, and New Haven continued heavy. Governments were unchanged and other bonds strong.

A stronger tone developed in the last half of the forenoon, some issues making vigorous upturns, while several others sold at new high levels for the movement. There was aggressive buying of Great Northern Ore, which touched 3 3/4, and an advance of one point was recorded in Union Pacific, which again sold above 100. Steel common recovered all its early loss, and American Can rallied one point. The show of strength in the late forenoon was not long maintained. Stocks seemed to be supplied from some source, and at the same time the room traders were disposed to seek weak spots. The appearance of some selling orders in Rock Island caused sharp declines in both the preferred and common stocks. The final stock market tone was weak. Governments were unchanged; railways and other bonds irregular.
